PUBLICITY GOES ON

ALL ARKANSAS TO HEAR OF NODAWAY COUNTY'S LIVE STOCK

GOVERNOR TO TALK IT

F. J. Bodman, Secretary of the Union Trust Co., Little Rock, Writes to Frank L. Garrett

Evidence that the recent visit to Maryville and Nodaway county by Arkansas bankers, business men and farmers will be productive of far-reaching results is contained in a letter received here from F. J. Bodman of Little Rock, secretary of the Union Trust Co., of that city, and chairman of the Profitable Farming Bureau. Mr. Bodman says that in addition to newspaper publicity, Governor Brough plans to spread the fame of Nodaway county's live stock in speeches all over the state.

Mr. Bodman's letter to Frank L. Garrett, of the Poland-China association, is as follows:

"Little Rock, Ark., July 9.

"F. L. Garrett, Secretary,
Standard Poland-China
Record Ass'n, Maryville, Mo.

"Dear Sir:

"As chairman of the organization that recently made a visit to Wisconsin, Iowa and Missouri points, and for myself personally, I wish to express appreciation of the kindness of the people of your community, as evidenced on this visit.

"This information will be spread among our people in Arkansas. Already the Arkansas Gazette, the leading newspaper of the state, as well as other newspapers, have had many favorable comments to make on your community and much more will be said. The governor is going to spread this information in his speeches through the state with the hope that we will profit by that which we have seen.

"Again thanking you for your many courtesies and trusting that at some early date we may have the privilege of entertaining, I am,

Yours very truly,
"E. J. BODMAN, Chairman."

A SCOUT COUNCIL MEETING

Executive Committee Plans to Increase Membership of Business Men In Aid of Local Troops

At a meeting last night of the executive committee of the Local Council, Boy Scouts of America, following organization of the council several weeks ago, it was decided to make the council a second class council under the rules of organization with jurisdiction only over the Maryville Scout troops. The committee will enlist the aid of citizens and business men as members of the council for the purpose of financing the Scout troops. In this manner it is hoped to increase the membership to fifty or more.

The Boy Scout organization is not only a recognized civic asset, but offers a system of training for boys over the age of twelve years that makes for character building and a desire to be of value to the community.

The officers present at last night's meeting which was held at the Commercial Club rooms were: J. M. McDonald, president; E. E. Williams, treasurer; E. M. Claypool, secretary; C. Edwin Wells, Scout commissioner; S. G. Gillam, D. R. Baker, L. S. Cook, M. A. Peery, and A. M. Crooke, members of the council.

GAVE 'HOPPER' TEST

SPECIAL AGENT DEMONSTRATED POISON BRAN MASH METHOD

FARMERS ARE INTERESTED

Order Placed for Large Supply of Arsenic—Other Demonstrations of Pest Riddance Announced

In a campaign to rid Nodaway county fields of the grasshopper pest the first demonstration of the poison bran mash method, recommended by the government, was given this morning by Special Agent C. C. Hamilton of the department of entomology, assisted by District Farm Agent J. M. Huston at the Alfred Jones farm northeast of town. Some twenty-five interested farmers were present.

Mr. Hamilton showed how the mash was made and mixed the formula for which has been given in these columns before, after which a thirty-acre clover field was treated, the process occupying less than two hours.

After the demonstration at the Jones farm the farmers went to the A. A. Wiley farm, where Mr. Wiley had already used the mash on his field, having spread it out last Tuesday. Here the results were plain, the dead insects being everywhere.

Mr. Wiley said he was much pleased with the result of the mash and within a few days his field had begun to show the effect and he expects to have good fall pasture. Previous to the use of the mash the insects had the clover well down. Mr. Wiley said the cost of treating the field was $11.20.

Another demonstration will be made early in the morning at the J. T. Parrish farm, six miles south of town and at the J. S. Casteel farm, east, on Monday.

Following the demonstration this morning and on offer of Mr. Hamilton to secure arnica for the bran mash at 15 cents a pound, the farmers wired for 125 pounds to be taken among them. This will treat over 500 acres.

Speaking of the effort to rid the farms of the hoppers, District Farm Agent J. M. Huston said that the farmers would find it profitable to get rid of them as they were very destructive if allowed to infest the fields. "There is no reason," he continued, "why the farmers here should not have good seed crops of clover followed by good pasture fields in the fall if they will use the poison bran mash and get into the fence and weed corners with discs, destroying the eggs. They multiply rapidly and we have found as many as 142 little hoppers on a single stalk of corn. Three hundred and fifty in a square yard was found by Mr. Hamilton in Livingston county and they are just as plentiful here. The cost is small and the returns are great."

Farmers who desire information or demonstrations should see Mr. Huston, who may be reached at the Farmers Trust Company.

RULES FOR HANDLING WHEAT

Farmers May Sell to Licensed Buyers or Ship Direct to Market—May Exchange for Flour at the Mill

Having had many inquiries about wheat, I will answer them briefly, and everybody interested will please cut this out and keep it for reference.

The farmers may sell their wheat to any licensed grain buyer, or they may load it in cars and ship it direct to any market if they prefer.

The farmer may also hold a reasonable amount for his seeding requirements for this fall and he may hold sufficient wheat to have ground for flour or to exchange for flour at the mill to provide for his family until the next harvest, but he can only have this ground under the rules at present at the rate of 8 pounds of finished flour for each member of his family for each thirty days, and it should be fully understood that the miller can not grind wheat for anybody or exchange them wheat for flour unless the person bringing the wheat signs a statement in which he states that this wheat is of his own raising and that he will use the flour for his own use, will not sell any of the same and will use substitutes with it, pound for pound.

Millers should observe this ruling and may secure the necessary certificates from my office, and no deviation or exception will be allowed.

This rule means that you cannot buy wheat and have it ground in exchange for flour, but must raise it yourself if you want to do that.

Yours truly,
F. P. ROBINSON,
Nodaway County Food Administrator.

THE BAR ORGANIZES

MEETING OF ATTORNEYS AT THE COURT HOUSE THIS AFTERNOON

ANNUAL MEETING IN OCT.

H. C. Colvin and J. C. Rosenberger of Kansas City Present Plan of Organization That Is Followed

Some twenty-five members of the Nodaway county bar met in the circuit court room at the court house this afternoon for the purpose of organizing a county bar association. Despite the fact that Nodaway county has a large number of practicing attorneys an organization has never been formed, and it was in response to present day conditions that make it desirable that there be closer relations maintained and that the practitioners as a body be in readiness to join in such war activities as may be necessary that the meeting this afternoon was called.

H. C. Colvin and J. C. Rosenberger, well known Kansas City attorneys, were present at the meeting and outlined the plan of organization as followed by other associations in the state. The visitors also presented some of the reasons why a local bar association was desirable.

Following the selection of Judge John M. Dawson as presiding officer and Fred Wolfers as temporary secretary, the routine of organization was begun.

It was decided that the annual meeting and dinner of the association be held each year on the second Wednesday in October. The meeting was still in progress at press time, with officers to be selected, following the adoption of a constitution.

A large per cent of practitioners at the local bar were represented at the meeting and were enrolled as members of the association.

A CORRECTION.

The statement in the Democrat-Forum that John B. Cox, manufacturer of an anti-pneumonia preparation, had been arrested by a federal agent, charged with violating the food rules, should have stated that Mr. Cox had been summoned to appear at St. Joseph on September 16 to appear before the federal court to answer to a charge of violating the pure food and drug act.

Return to Their Home.

Mr. and Mrs. E. T. Rasmussen, who have been visiting for several weeks with Mrs. Rasmussen's parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. T. Crane, left today for their home in Riverton, Nebr.

TIGHTEN LID ON GAS

AUTO MEN LOOK FOR WAR ECONOMY MEASURE SOON

TO CONSERVE SUPPLY

A Six o'Clock Closing Rule With No Sales On Sundays and Holidays Will Be the Program

Maryville auto owners and drivers may expect soon to be asked by the Commercial Economy Board of the National Council of Defense to observe a new rule in an effort to conserve the gasoline supply of the county. The program, which prohibits the sale of gasoline after six o'clock in the evening and on Sundays and holidays is intended to place the automobile industry throughout the country on a war basis for the elimination of unnecessary service, releasing of men for war work and the conservation of materials and supplies needed in war purposes—especially gasoline.

The new program provides for closing at 6 p. m. daily, except Saturday, on which day they will remain open until 10 p. m. They will also be closed on Sunday and regular holidays.

Emergency service will be rendered to the extent of towing in disabled cars to service stations and repair shops. Customers storing cars in public garages will be permitted to secure them and bring them in between the hours outlined for work. However, no gasoline, accessories or supplies will be sold, or work done.

The new conservation order has been placed in effect in Grundy county and the Trenton Republican, in telling of the action of the dealers there, says:

"As their part in assisting in the war-time conservation the automobile men are reducing the number of demonstrating cars and are saving gasoline, oil and materials wherever possible by the enforcement of economical shop methods. New machinery is being installed for the purpose of reducing the time of mechanics in labor operation so that more work may be done by less men. All of the automobile men are taking steps to assist owners to prepare their cars for the period during which they will not have the old time night and day service accessible."

Already such a program is in effect in Kansas City and in some of the other towns in the state.

SUGAR SAVING IMPERATIVE

Supply of Ships Insufficient to Move Distant Crops—Missouri to Be Carefully Policed

The distribution and consumption of sugar during the summer is to be carefully policed by the Missouri division of the food administration. Steps have been taken to prevent waste. No matter what the Cuban or remote sugar crop is, the supply of ships is insufficient to get it here.

The food administration urges the use of sugar for canning and preserving of fruits, as this is an actual saving of food. It not only saves the perishable fruits and vegetables at the time of their abundance, but the canned products will take the place of other foods next winter.

To protect the supply for household canning and preserving, manufacturers of all less essential foodstuffs have all been put on a strict sugar ration. These manufacturers are to be allowed only 50 per cent of their normal requirements. Included in this class are makers of confectionery and soft drinks.

Manufacturers of jam, jelly or preserves, on the other hand, will be permitted, along with preservers and packers of vegetables, catsup, chile sauce and fruits, to buy sugar enough to meet their full requirements. Absolutely no sugar will be allowed to manufacturers of non-edible products.

With the government behind them to protect their supply of sugar for legitimate uses the food administration asks that the country's housewives show their loyalty to the government in its effort to secure the sugar needed by the Allies while protecing our own people. They are asked to use sugar wisely and not too freely. They are asked to measure the sugar carefully, to use enough to insure the keeping of their fruits and vegetables, but not to waste a grain of it.

Misses Nellie Wolfe and Vada Foland and Ernest Kessler visited friends in Hopkins last evening.

NO CHANGE IN GERMAN POLICY

"Although Ready For Peace Offer, We Must Go On Fighting," Says Chancellor Von Hertling

Paris, July 12.—Speaking before the main committee of the Reichstag, Imperial Chancellor Von Hertling said there would be no change in the foreign policy of the empire, citing as proof of this the German answer to the note from Pope Benedict, according to advices from Basel.

"Before the persistent will of the enemy to destroy her, manifested recently by the speeches of President Wilson and Foreign Secretary Balfour," he said, "Germany, although ready to accept a proposition for serious negotiations, must go on fighting."

The imperial chancellor concluded his remarks by saying the replacing of Foreign Secretary Von Kuehlmann was only a personal matter.

UNCLE SAM AS A MOTHER.

Uncle Sam looks after his soldier boys in camp as carefully as a hen with one chick does after her offspring. When it comes to the health of the army nothing is too small to take into account. The pernicious microbe is microscopic in size, but it could do a lot of damage if let alone.

The grounds about the camp are kept free of rubbish and decaying matter. Garbage cans are covered and screened. Traps are set to catch flies. The instructions given the men are explicit and leave no room for personal views as to sanitation. War is being made upon disease as scientifically as upon the kaiser.

In some of the camps the drill grounds are oiled. It was discovered that dust stirred by tramping feet caused respiratory troubles. So the order went out, "No dust." And there is none.

Talking of feet, the government pays a great deal of attention to the "number nines" of the troops. Orthopedists examine bad feet, prescribe exercises and give treatment. As a result, the disability is often removed and the feet restored to normal.

Special attention is given also to shoes. The army shoe is in itself a panacea for almost 75 per cent of the ills the foot is heir to. As a result of this sensible shoe the corn crop in some camps is a total failure. Minor ailments also disappear. Service in the army will save thousands of our boys from the sufferings that come in middle age from wearing ill-fitting shoes in their young manhood.

Another matter that comes under the keen eye of the medical authorities is shaving. A general order has been issued requiring all barbers employed at the various camp barber shops to wash their hands with soap and water before attendance upon each man. Towels used for one patron can not be used again until laundered. Cups and brushes must be scalded after each shaving.

A recent survey of the physical condition of the men at one of the camps shows by comparison with the data taken at their coming that they have gained from a half inch to an inch in height and from 5 to 25 pounds in weight. This is a convincing demonstration, both to the men themselves and to the home folks, of the value of substantial and nourishing food, regular hours, sanitary environment and regular exercises. Stooped shoulders have been straightened, caved-in chests filled out, sagging "tummies" made hard and able to hold their own in the place where nature intended them to be, and steps that once dragged listlessly move with a springiness and vigor that indicate the healthy man.

If your boy is in the army, 10 to 1 he is in better health than he has ever been in his life. He is being looked over outside, and one might almost say inside, as he has never been before. And if anything is wrong with him it will be put right if science and skill can do it.

What Daylight Saving Has Accomplished

(By John Anson Ford, in the August Popular Mechanics Magazine).

In a single day the personal habits of 100,000,000 were radically changed by the passing of the daylight-saving law, and that change has greatly benefitted the nation's health, promoted gardening on an unprecedented scale and has conserved great quantities of fuel through the use of less artificial light. Householders have been among those who have enjoyed the most marked reduction in lighting bills.

An Illinois county seat in which are 891 meters installed in homes and small stores, furnishes figures which probably can be taken as typical of thousands of American communities. In April, 1917, the current used was 22,606 kw.-hr., and in April, 1918, 21,942 kw.-hr., making a saving of 1,664 kw.-hr. The consumption for May last year and this year was 21,672 kw.-hr., and 19,934 kw.-hr., respectively, making a slightly larger decrease than for April, while in June, preliminary estimates showed the saving in lighting current would be very much greater. In the plant supplying this town approximately 3½ lbs. of Illinois coal is consumed in making 1 kw.-hr. of electricity. Estimating the average monthly saving of the community at 1,800 kw.-hr., an added hour of daylight for seven months theoretically will effect a saving of more than 22 tons of coal. It as seems altogether probable, thousands of other communities have made a similar record, the total saving is enormous.

In large office buildings the saving has been, and will be, small during the period of changed time because practically all the offices are empty before the hour of darkness arrives. On the other hand, clubs, hotels, etc., have experienced a saving in artificial light estimated at four or five per cent. In one nationally known hotel the daily average of current used during April, 1917, was 3,451 kw.-hr., as compared with 3,067 kw.-hr. in April, 1918, while the daily averages for May of last year and this were 3,230 kw.-hr. and 2,920 kw.-hr., respectively. As in other plants during these war times, a considerable part of the saving is not due to the change of time alone, but to greater care in using lights and to the installation of smaller lamps, etc. Making allowance for these factors, the daily saving in this hotel on account of the change of time will average as much as 170 kw.-hr. In the seven-month period theoretically this hotel will save 71 tons of coal, approximately four pounds of fuel being required to produce 1 kw.-hr. of current.

The chief executive of a large group of public utility companies which normally spend $50,000,000 a year on extensions and improvements, estimates that the new time schedule has caused a three or four per cent reduction in the amount of lighting current supplied by his companies. What this would actually amount to in terms of coal was not stated. Early in the spring this public utility expert advocated the adoption of the new time schedule for the entire year, believing that it would be a public benefit. The fuel administration has also argued for the extension of the plan to include the winter months. But more recently the expert referred to has changed his attitude, declaring that figures obtained from his engineers show such discrepancies that he is uncertain as to what benefit, if any, would result from a winter daylight-saving schedule.

The change of time has been a big factor in increasing gardening in towns and cities. Thousands of factory employees in industrial centers are able to raise produce for the first time. The bathing beaches, parks and other outdoor recreation centers have had big increases in patronage. The health department of the Chicago health department says that the present season shows a big decrease in disease in that city and he attributes much of the improvement to daylight-saving.

The consensus seems to be that as a fuel-saving measure, as well as from the standpoint of health and increased food production, the daylight-saving plan has been highly successful. Estimates given out by the fuel administration state that the plan will effect a saving in this country of 1,000,000 to 1,500,000 tons of coal.

"BEST MEDICINE FOR WOMEN"

What Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Did For Ohio Woman.

Portsmouth, Ohio.—"I suffered from irregularities, pains in my side and was so weak at times I could hardly get around to do my work, and as I had four in my family and three boarders it made it very hard for me. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was recommended to me. I took it and it has restored my health. It is certainly the best medicine for woman's ailments I ever saw."—Mrs. SARA SHAW, R. No. 1, Portsmouth, Ohio.

Mrs. Shaw proved the merit of this medicine and wrote this letter in order that other suffering women may find relief as she did.

Women who are suffering as she was should not drag along from day to day without giving this famous root and herb remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, a trial. For special advice in regard to such ailments write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass. The result of its forty years experience is at your service.

A HAWAIIAN ORCHESTRA.

Dubinsky Bros. Will Entertain With Special Musical Feature.

A special musical feature in the form of a Hawaiian orchestra is announced by the Dubinsky Bros. stock company, which opens a week's engagement here starting Monday, July 15.

The atmosphere of the far off island; the wave-washed shores of Waikiki; the plaintive music of the ukeleles, mingles with the dreamy melodious voices of the natives, stirs the imagination to delightful heights, and one is seemingly transported to that far-away jewel of the Pacific — Hawaii, the land of music and flowers.

Among the special features introduced, is Johnnie Kaai, who presents several selections on the steel guitar, using only one hand in manipulating the instrument.

Each of the Hawaiians is an artist.

The Fabric Carcass of a Tire, NOT the Rubber Tread, Determines the Life of a Tire

Keep the fabric well protected and you get double mileage from your tires.

The fabric carcass of a tire is built strong. It has to be built strong to hold an air pressure of from 60 to 100 lbs to every square inch. It is built so strong that it should last for 20,000 to 30,000 miles.

But here is what happens: The rubber tread of the tire wears thin, and when it does the fabric carcass is liable to blow up at any time. It blows out because it is no longer protected from stone bruises and shocks of the road, or it blows out because moisture reaches the fabric through cuts and nail holes, and rots it.

Today hundreds of motorists are having KRAMER retread their tires.

We put on a tread of the same thickness and quality that you get in a new tire.

This new thick tread protects the fabric carcass from bruises and shocks on the road. It makes your tires practically as good as new.

If your tires are wearing thin, have KRAMER retread them —you will get double mileage and the cost of retreading is less than half that of new tires.

CORRECTLY DONE

IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE

Among the numerous entertainment numbers which the Chautauqua will bring this season none will so reach out and grasp the whole population as will that killingly funny farce comedy, "It Pays to Advertise."

The play is funny of itself, the plot being so laid as to invite no end of comic situations. It is artistically intertwined with just enough of love and romance to give it the personal interest flavor. But it is designed for a funmaker and it certainly fills the bill.

The players are all people seasoned to the stage and with ample reputations back of them in their professions. Wm. J. Keighley will play the part of Ambrose Peale. He was for many years associated with the famous Ben Greet, and he has played in numerous New York successes. James Mitchell will play Rodney Martin, Miss Jane Brae will be Mary Grayson and Lowdon Adams plays the part of Ellery Clark.

It is a riot of fun from the kickoff to the touchdown. There is not one dull or lonesome minute in the play. The action is very rapid and rushes from one set of perplexities into worse ones with a speed that keeps one guessing. It is the brightest picture of a dark business prospect ever drawn. But it all comes out lovely.

BEET SUGAR GOOD FOR JAMS

Cane Variety No Better For Preserving Fruits, Dr. Alonzo Taylor Says

Beet sugar for preserving and packing jams, jellies and fresh fruits will accomplish every purpose that any other sugar will accomplish, Dr. Alonzo Taylor of the United States food administration said recently in a communication to F. B. Mumford, federal food administrator for Missouri.

In Utah beet sugar is urged exclusively with perfect results for these purposes. All standard granulated sugars, whether cane or beet, have a purity of better than 99½ per cent, so that the only possible difference between beet and cane sugar would be the character of this fraction of one per cent of substances which accompanies either sugar and which is called impurity.

In both cases the minute fraction is made up of inorganic solids and it is not possible that this infinitesimal portion could contribute any disadvantage for fruit-packing purposes Dr. Taylor declares.

GROCER UP AGAINST IT.

"I have been up against it for past 3 years suffering from pain in my stomach and side until I was considering giving up my grocery business. Doctors and medicine did not help me. I heard of Mayr's Wonderful Remedy through a friend in Buffalo. The first dose gave me more benefit than all the medicine I had taken before and am now feeling well as ever in my life." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal muceous from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded.—Maryville Drug Co. and druggists everywhere. —Adv.

Soldier's Letters

READY TO START OVERSEAS

Corporal Wm. R. Burris Writes From Camp Mills They're About Ready

The following letter from Corporal Wm. Robt. Burris, in the motor supply train service, has just been received by his mother, Mrs. W. A. Burris:

"Camp Mills, Newport News, Va.
Sunday Night, July 7, 1918.

"Dearest Mother: I think I had better write tonight, even though I am too tired to think, for I believe this will be my last opportunity. The way things look now, we are going out in a day or two and will sure be gone by the time you get this letter. We were given our entire woolen outfits last night and two pairs of trench shoes (which are the only kind they will give me). They are sure some kicks.'

"I have had the opportunity lately to have the picture taken that you asked for. We are kept in like a bunch of prisoners, due to the fact that some poor devil in our company had to break out with the measles as soon as we landed. They say this city is a beautiful place. The weather is delightful; always a cool breeze from the ocean. I can look out on the bay any time of the day and see huge transports and ships of all kinds leaving. Talk about airplanes! They are as plentiful as birds here.

"Elmer and I are still together, but Paul and Sam are quarantined in another barrack. Elmer has been unfortunate enough to have to work in the kitchen every other day since landing here.

"Today we changed our money for French checks, so now am rich (?) in French money, and what's so pitiful concerning it is that I don't know any more about it than a jackrabbit knows about Sunday.

"I am positively weary of detention life here. It has been clothing inspection and physical examination every day and every few minutes until it is an old, old story.

"I have not received the box you sent, but here's hoping it gets here in the morning. The very thought of that cake makes me see visions and dream dreams. Eats have been bum recently for some cause unbeknown to myself. But, of course, we can buy things outside and manage to enjoy a few good things once in a while.

"Now, I don't want any of you to worry about me while I'm gone. I am coming back as good (any way) as when I left, and a very much wiser boy.

"Our company is taking up a collection to buy a victrola to take with us. I think they have decided that I can carry it on my truck when we ride into Berlin. We have decided to play 'There's a Long, Long Trail a-Winding' and 'It's a Long Way to Berlin, But We've Reached There.'

"I think I've told you all of interest, only this: I don't want any of you to wory while I'm gone, and look for me back just as soon as things are over 'over there.' Write to me often so that I will be sure to get some of it. I will write just as often as I can and tell all I may. I must close now and get to bed. I was one chosen to stay up all last night to issue the clothing, and the flies have been so numerous today I could not sleep. You get the idea why I'm pretty tired.

"Once more, don't worry. Lots of love to one and all.

"Devotedly, your son,

"Corporal Wm. Robt. Burris.

FARM BOYS CAN ENTER NAVY

Volunteers Will Be Received and Will Be Given Furloughs to Help Harvest Fall Crops

The following is from the U. S. navy recruiting station at St. Louis, F. M. Willson, commanding officer:

Arrangements have been made whereby we will enlist farm boys in the navy and permit them to return home from St. Louis long enough to help thresh crops.

This is effective at once, and recruits may be sent to St. Louis by the postmasters the same as usual after they are examined by a local physician; and if needed at home for farm work, they can have sufficient time off before being ordered to training camp; time off to be determined by the recruiting officer at St. Louis.

Previous announcements of this nature were due to a temporary crowded condition of the training camps, lasting but a few days, when all recruits were sent home on waiting orders.

This is a special furlough privilege for farm boys only and will probably remain in effect for the rest of the summer, because the navy recognizes the priceless value of crops in winning the war and the scarcity of farm hands.

Farm boys who are registered should ask their local boards now for written permission to volunteer in the navy and bring it with them to St. Louis.

Kindly publish this article in your newspaper, which will, no doubt, be good news to a number of readers.

REMOVE THE DOCKAGE BEFORE MARKETING WHEAT

New Grading Rules Place a Premium on Clean Wheat.

Farmers' Bulletin No. 919 of the United States department of agriculture brings to our attention the fact that it is better business for the farmer to sift and grade his wheat than to market it with the dockage still in the grain. It defines dockage as "sand, dirt, weed seeds, wheat stems, chaff, straw, grain other than wheat, and any other foreign material which can be readily removed from the wheat by the use of appropriate sieves, cleaning devices or other practical means suited to separate the foreign material present; also undeveloped, shriveled and small pieces of wheat kernels necessarily removed in properly separating the foreign material."

Grading encourages the farmer to take such care in growing the crop as to produce only the best quality of grain. Wheat grown on soil where the available plantfood is reduced to a minimum will no longer be able to compete in price with the big, plump kernels which a well-fed and well-cared-for plant produces.

HIGH CROP PRICES

What They Mean to the Farmer.

Years ago the farmers of Illinois, Iowa and Minnesota burned their manure piles. They had to—the piles were in the way. They obstructed the streets of the newly grown towns and settlements. With a soil in the first flush of fertility and with wheat at low price, the cost of hauling and spreading a load of manure was not brought back in the increase of crop. So the manure piles were burned or dumped into hollows or disposed of in any way possible.

Today the land is past its virgin fertility. Wheat is higher than ever before. It pays to save manure and so even in the far West farmers are this year for the first time building cement feeding floors and cement pits and in other ways adopting measures which lead to high farming. High crop prices have made this possible.

For two generations the Western farmer has been mining instead of farming. He has put back on the land no return for the plant food removed by crops. Now, with wheat at $2 per bushel, he finds it pays him to put back this food. For the first time in history the Western farmer is buying fertilizer—because high crop prices have made high farming profitable.

FERTILIZER MAKES WHEAT A PROFITABLE CROP

Missouri Man Doubles His Wheat Crop by Using Commercial Plantfood.

Rich Lucas of Howell county, Missouri, says that wheat was never a very profitable crop for him until he began to use fertilizer. When he was attending the University of Missouri he learned that nitrogen and phosphoric acid were seldom present in sufficient quantities to grow a big crop. From this he began experiments which have proven to him that he must use fertilizers if he expects a profit from wheat.

Mr. Lucas tells of an experiment which he tried last year on wheat. The wheat was seeded following corn, and was fertilized at the rate of 150 pounds to the acre. On the last eight or ten rounds no fertilizer was used. This served as a check. In the spring the fertilized part received an additional application of nitrate of soda at the rate of 50 pounds to the acre.

Mr. Lucas tells his own story of the result as follows: "The fertilized wheat grew nicely and matured me a yield of 20.1 bushels per acre in spite of the hard winter, the drought and the Hessian fly. The unfertilized grain yielded only 10.9 bushels per acre. Not only was the yield less by almost half, but the size and quality of the berry was very poor in comparison."

RAILROAD ADMINISTRATION URGES FARMERS TO ORDER FALL SUPPLIES EARLY

The following letter from the car service section of the United States railroad administration serves to emphasize the importance of conveying to every farmer the fact that he can help the transportation situation and also safeguard himself by placing his fertilizer order early—Now.

United States Railroad Administration.
W. G. McAdoo, Director General.
Interstate Commerce Building.
Washington, May 17, 1918.

Car Service Section, the Committee on Fertilizer, 540 Woodward Building, Washington, D. C.

Gentlemen: The car service section of the United States railroad administration desires to call attention to the necessity for still heavier loading of fertilizer cars to be used for summer and fall business.

Excellent results have followed the efforts in this direction already made by fertilizer manufacturers and shippers, and we are able to report that the average carload of fertilizer this spring was from 20 to 30 per cent heavier than in previous seasons. This economy of space has saved the equivalent of many thousands of freight cars. In other words, large numbers of cars have been released for other urgent wartime needs—certainly a saving of great importance in these days of severe car shortage.

We feel, however, that even greater saving must be effected. Practically every car should go out loaded to capacity plus 10 per cent. The demand for cars to move war supplies to the seaboard is increasing daily. Every shipper must contribute his share toward making up the extra car supply required for government uses. There is only one way in which to do this, and that is to load cars heavier and thus ship the same amount of goods in fewer cars.

We appreciate the fact that in order to load every car to capacity manufacturers must have their orders in hand at a date sufficiently early to allow the assembling and grouping of all less-than-carload quantities. This, of course, necessitates full and free co-operation on the part of the farmer and dealer.

We want to urge upon you to use every means at your disposal to secure such active co-operation from both dealer and consumer, that orders may be on hand early enough this summer to enable manufacturers to send out every car loaded to capacity plus 10 per cent. We feel certain that when the necessity for this action is brought forcibly to the attention of the farmer—upon whose response success depends—the co-operation secured will approach 100 per cent.

We must get results, but results secured through free co-operation are much to be preferred to results secured by official regulation.

CAR SERVICE SECTION,
(Signed) C. B. PHELPS.

A BILLION BUSHEL WHEAT CROP IS ASKED

Is It Worth the Effort?

The Cornbelt Farmer refers to the "Billion Bushel Wheat" appeal and shows how close we have come to reaching that mark. "Is it worth the while?" the editor asks. Evidently he thinks it is very much worth the effort. "Laying the matter of profit and loss aside, there can be no greater benefit to humanity than to come through the present crop season with the greatest crop ever known.

"Will it be feast or famine? The answer will come from the broad prairies of the United States. With present prices of wheat ranging at 203.6 cents average against 89.8 cents for 1910 to 1914, there is a double incentive."

Opportunity seldom knocks twice at any man's door. We may never again see the price of wheat as high or the acre profit as large as it is in these war times. The price is assured and in a large measure the profit as well, except that the net profit will get larger as we increase our yields. If we don't have more than a billion-bushel crop in 1919 it will be because we have neglected to answer the knock.

The details—saving manure, using fertilizer, lime and tillage, all of which go to make a big crop—assume importance as big as a long-range gun. Use them all, and use them where they will do the most good.

HATES THE FAKES LOVES THE LOYAL LANDS HARD BLOW

Hon. B. F. McDonald of Ohio Will Appear at Chautauqua as the Champion of Sincerity and Give Unpleasant Hour to the Fakers.

MOONSHINE HIS THEME

"Moonshine" is the rather odd sounding subject of a lecture to be delivered at Chautauqua. It will not be delivered in a jug from the Kentucky or Tennessee mountains. It will be delivered by Hon. B. F. McDonald, of Ohio. It is a wonderful lecture too, full of wisdom and truth.

Hon. B. F. McDonald is a lawyer by profession, and enjoys a fine practice. He lectures in the summer time for relaxation. He has seen a lot of the world and has learned of many of its shams and pretensions. And he knows how to deal with these with bare knuckles, in blows straight out from the shoulder.

He is a fine orator and arouses the keenest interest. His address is educative as well as entertaining. He knows the true life values and puts them strongly to the front. He is a big booster for better things all along the line.

Hear this gifted man at Chautauqua and get clearer vision of human problems. See McDonald's "Moonshine" and be glad the balance of the season.

SMALL SPOONS AS REMINDER

Hotel Man's Idea Brought Good Results in the Decreased Consumption of Sugar.

At breakfast in a small hotel a traveling man noticed that the guests in the dining room were averaging about two spoonfuls of sugar to the cup of coffee, though the sugar was low in the bowl.

In the dining room of the railroad station where he got his lunch, the sugar bowl was empty. Nobody was grumbling about the scarcity of sugar or anything else, because the country was at war. But a man wearing spectacles did lift a big spoon out of the bowl where the sugar would have been.

"Wonder why it is customary for us Americans to shovel sugar instead of dipping it?" he asked a friend.

That night, at a hotel in the city, the drummer had dipped about four times with the after-dinner coffee spoon he found in the sugar before he got half as much sugar as he usually took. He looked at the negro waiter opposite and smiled.

"Yes, suh, mister," that black dignitary grinned, "that's whut we calls the little 'war spoon.' The boss, he says it helps people to remember; and they don't use much more'n half as much sugar since he put it in the sugar dish."—Eugene Blake in The Vigilantes.

Curious Food Supplies.

Heeding the Puget sound call for food from the deep, a whole regiment of patriotic seals offered themselves for slaughter in the Sea island, Bering sea, and a large supply of their meat was brought down in January by the United States steamship Roosevelt, for scientific test of its food value, Phil Norton writes in Leslie's. Officers of the bureau of fisheries and new dish connoisseurs at Seattle sampled the seal roast at sundry feasts. It gave them a grand and glorious feeling, they said. It makes the stomach feel slick and efficient. It is better than the meat of the burly whale. It is dark red in color, rich and juicy, stripped of blubber, as good as fine beef, in fact. The north Pacific is full of them. Only three-year-old males are slaughtered. Little pieces of pork are cooked with the seal roast, to give it flavor.

The walrus, adorned with valuable ivory tucks, also is being mobilized. One of these fat and bulky creatures would feed a whole troop of Sammies. "Not so," say Puget sounders; "we'll eat the walrus and send our beef across."

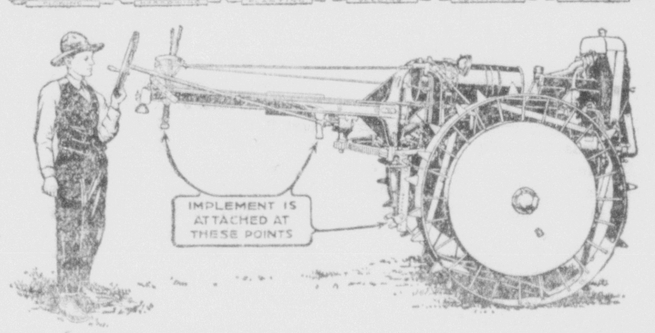
ONE MAN OPERATES BOTH TRACTOR AND IMPLEMENT



MOLINE UNIVERSAL TRACTOR

It Solves the Farm Help Problem

All the Weight Goes Into Pull

In the Moline Universal Tractor, 98% of the total weight rests on the two big drive wheels—all but 2% of the weight goes into pull. There are no front wheels to push along that are used for no other purpose but to carry weight and steer. All of the weight is traction weight, actively going into pull.

That is why the Moline Universal Tractor, weighing only 3380 pounds, is able to do the same amount of work as machines from 1500 to 2000 pounds heavier, and to do it at less expense, with less gasoline and less lubricating oil.

The Moline Universal does not operate as an independent tractor, but is combined with the implement to form a single, compact unit, the tractor forming the front wheels and the implement the rear wheels. One man controls the whole outfit from the seat of the implement, where he must sit to do good work. For odd jobs, the tractor is equipped with a rear carrying truck that permits it to be used like any other tractor.

Changing from one implement to another is an easy and simple operation, the hitch for all implements being the same, with but three points of attachment. One man easily supports the rear end of the tractor and swings it into position.

The Moline Universal Tractor possesses advantages offered by no other tractor in case of control, adaptability to all kinds of work, and one-man operation. It is the ideal tractor for any size farm.

Call at our place of business and let us show you the good features of this machine in detail.
